AN INVESTIGATION TO FOLLOW

BRUTALLY MURDERED.

Williamsburg, Ky., March 28.—Mrs. Green Alder was brutally murdered at her home at Saxon, Ky., eight miles north of Jellico, Tenn., last night. The murderer escaped, and there is no clue to his identity, and no known motive for his horrible crime.

Mr. and Mrs. Alder returned home from church services about 9 o'clock, and Mrs. Alder unlocked the front door while Mr. Alder went to the henery to investigate the supply of eggs.

A moment later he heard his wife scream, and running to the front door of the house, he saw an unknown man making his escape from the front door.

Alder found his wife prostrate on the floor in a pool of blood, and she lived but a short time. She had been brained with an ax, which was found beside her covered with blood.

The murderer had concealed himself in the house, and struck the deadly blow as she entered. Some are of the opinion that it is the fatal termination of some long affair of long ago.

Mrs. Alder was a young woman, and she and her husband had been married but a short time. She was a daughter of Andrew Lucas, a leading citizen of the county. There is much excitement, especially about the mining camp sections, and posse are scouring the country in every direction, and in case any arrest is made there is likely to be violence.

LAWYER PATRICK.

IS BROTHER-IN-LAW OF A FOR-MER WELL KNOWN
PADUCAHIAN.

The conviction of Lawyer Albert T. Patrick, in New York, for the alleged murder of millionaire Rice of Texas is of unusual interest in Paducah because the prisoner is a near relative of a man who formerly lived here and now has many Paducah friends. This is Mr. John Milliken, a former Paducahian, who went to St. Louis some years ago and amassed a fortune, now having the finest residence there. Mr. Milliken married a Miss Patrick, sister to the convicted man, and every thing that money could do was done

ALDERMANIC BOARD

Opposition Developing in the Council
To More than four or Six.

Some Councilmen think there should First be Some Need for Eight

NO NEW APPOINTMENTS BEEN MADE

It is probable that the aldermanic board will have but six, or possibly four, members, instead of eight, the number the mayor wants. The council decides the number, and some of the members are outspoken in their opposition to the number prescribed in the ordinance passed by the aldermanic board itself.

One member, who referred to the board as the "upper crust," stated that it looked to him like the most unmitigated gall for a newly appointed board to meet, and without investigating the requirements of the city, or the expense that would be incurred, increase its number to eight members. It is true, it is understood that they were only complying with the behests of the mayor, but they should have more regard for the welfare of the people and the advisability of curtailing the expenses of city government, which will be large enough as it is, than to take such hasty and inadvertent action. This seems to be the opinion of more than one councilman.

One plan suggested is that of having four, or possibly six aldermen until just before the November election, when the members of the board are to be elected by the people, and then if the council deems it advisable after seeing how it works with four or six aldermen, increase the number, if it is deemed expedient.

Another question that will arise is the legality of the appointment of the aldermen, and the subsequent organization, election of a president and passage of an ordinance fixing the number of the board at eight. If the mayor must receive official notice of the transfer of Paducah to the second class, the appointments have been premature and illegal.

Mayor Yeiser stated today that he would not call the council together until he received the official notice he has sent for. He also said he has not decided on any of the other appointments he is to make when the new changes take effect.

SOLDIERS WANT PAY.

MASON COUNTY GUARDS SUE
FOR $7,000 FOR SER-VICES.

Frankfort, Ky., March 28.—Suit has been brought in the Franklin circuit court against Governor J. C. W. Beckham and Adjutant General D. R. Murray for the pay due the Mason county guards from February 6, 1900, to May 25, 1900, while on duty at Frankfort. The amount involved is about $7,000.

The time for which the soldiers demand pay was between the issuance of the Goebel proclamation on February 5, discharging the soldiers, and the decision of the United States supreme court on May 25, after which Adjutant General Collier turned over the troops to Adjutant General John A. Castleman.

The suit follows a late decision of the appellate court, allowing a number of clerks in the department their salaries until the decision of the higher court placed the Democratic administration in charge. If this suit should be successful it would be followed by others asking pay for all of the Taylor militia for this time, which would amount to approximately $50,000.

THE WEATHER.

APPARENTLY HEAVY RAINFALL
HAS BEEN LIGHT.

The rainfall since Wednesday has been slight, probably lighter than apprehensions will lead to believe.

Wednesday morning the rainfall was only .75, and last night the gauge showed only .92, a slight increase over Wednesday. More rain is predicted, however, as the following weather report will show:

For Kentucky—Saturday, rain and colder, except fair in the extreme western portion.

FIVE DOLLARS A BOX

THE PRICE CUT NO FIGURE
WITH HIM.

"I want to say for the benefit of some poor dyspeptic that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will give comfort and more every time. Five dollars a box would not stop my purchasing them should I ever suffer again as I did for a week before using them.

The one 50 cent box I bought at my druggist's did the work and my digestion is all right again.

Many of my neighbors have also tried these tablets and found them to be just as represented and Mr. Ellms also wants me to use his name in endorsing Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Signed

A. ELLMS AND CHAS. F. BUZZELL,
Asst. Postmaster,

South Sudbury, Mass.

Mrs. James Barton, of Toronto, Canada, writes: "For eighteen months I suffered from what I supposed was bladder and kidney trouble, and took medicine from three different dealers, without any sign of a cure. I felt so ill at last I was hardly able to do my work.

"I thought I would try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and see if they would make me feel better, never really thinking I had dyspepsia, but after only three or four tablets had been taken all the acid trouble disappeared and then I discovered I had acid dyspepsia, while the doctor had been treating me for kidney and bladder trouble and one of them treated me for rheumatism.

"My digestion is fine, my complexion clear and I am able to do my work and low spirits are unknown to me.

"I am so thankful for finding a cure so good and so pleasant to take as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I am surprised at the change they have made in me."

All druggists sell and recommend Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they contain only the simple natural digestives, and taken after meals prevent acidity and cause prompt digestion and assimilation of food.

Physicians everywhere endorse them because they are as safe for the child as for the adult; they are invincible for sour stomach, nervous dyspepsia, heartburn, gas on the stomach and bowels and every form of stomach derangement.

DISTASTE FOR DESERTERS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ANNOUNCES THAT THIS CLASS OF MEN CANNOT FIND FAVOR WITH HIM.

Washington, March 28.—President Roosevelt declared that so long as he is in office no deserter from the army or navy would find favor with him. The statement was made to Captains Frank Bruner and Ford McDonough of Lytle post, G. A. R., of Cincinnati, who handed him a set of resolutions from the ex-Union soldiers of Cincinnati condemning the restoration of deserters to the rolls and approving his course in vetoing certain bills recently passed by Congress.

NEW BUILDINGS.

The New Masonic-Odd Fellows Building a Certainty.

Final Settlement of Questions Monday
Palmer House annex.

It is stated that the new Masonic Odd Fellows' building, to be erected here on the site adjoining the custom house, will be begun within two months. The members of the building committee now have under advisement a plan which it is thought will result in the immediate erection of the structure, which will cost about $10,000.

The plan is not given out, and the matter will be finally settled Monday night, but there is practically little prospect of its being abandoned, and ground will doubtless be broken this spring and the work pushed to completion.

The site cost $12,000, and the plans were drawn by Architect Davis some time ago. All necessary to do is to arrange for the money and begin the work.

The Kentucky theatre was built with the intention of erecting in the foreground an annex to the Palmer House. The exterior plans for this annex were drawn some time ago, and are virtually a duplicate of the present Palmer House front. The interior is now being drawn by Architect Brauer, and when completed, bids for it will be asked, and if they are satisfactory the annex will be built this spring.

It is by no means certain, however, that it will be built, as with existing conditions here, and the increase in the cost of building by reason of advances in the wages of workmen, the bills may be too high, and the hotel company may decide it is inadvisable to build the annex for a year or two longer. The additional cost to contractors by reason of the increases in wages will of course have to be ultimately paid by those building houses, hence it is uncertain how high the bills for the work may go.

Work on all buildings in course of construction is being pushed with the greatest possible speed on account of the demand and uncertainty that lingers about developments next week when the time arrives for contractors and contractors to agree or fall out. Nothing has yet been done, and in case the carpenters go out it will paralyze building here until everything is settled.

Nothing has been heard for some time of the contemplated enlargement of the government building, but a congress will be in session for some time yet, the till for the appropriation may yet pass.

It develops that there was absolutely nothing in the report that a deal was on for the Loeb property at Fifth and Broadway to erect a first class restaurant by Mr. Louis Seelbach of Louisville. A letter received from Mr. Seelbach today states

ONE GENERAL NOT IN TOILS.

CAPTURE OF NORIEL LEAVES
ONLY ONE FILIPINO COM-MANDING OFFICER
IN THE FIELD.

Manila, March 28.—Noriel, the only insurgent general with the exception of Malvar, still in the field, has been captured by Lieutenant Frank E. Bamford of the Twenty-eighth Infantry.

A major, a captain, a lieutenant and five men, who were acting as body guard to Noriel, were captured with him. They have all been held as prisoners of war. There is some reason to believe that one member of this body guard is General Malvar in disguise. Lieutenant Bamford is certain that if this general is not one of the captured party, he is in the immediate neighborhood of the place of Noriel's capture.

Noriel has been one of the recognized leaders of the insurrection since 1899. He was captured on his way to the coast while endeavoring to escape. He admits that the insurrection, as such, is over, and says that the few remaining leaders are fleeing, as they do not command enough men to warrant surrenders commensurate with their rank.

SCROFULA

I bequeath to my children Scrofula with all its attendant horrors, humiliation and suffering. This is a strange legacy to leave to posterity; a heavy burden to place upon the shoulders of the young.

This treacherous disease dwarfs the body and hinders the growth and development of the faculties, and the child born of blood poison, or acrofia-tainted parentage, is poorly equipped for life's duties.

Scrofula is a disease with numerous and varied symptoms; enlarged glands or tumors about the neck and arms, catarrh of the head, weak eyes and dreadful skin eruptions upon different parts of the body show the presence of tubercular or scrofulous matter in the blood. This dangerous and stealthy disease entrenches itself securely in the system and attacks the bones and tissues, destroys the red corpuscles of the blood, resulting in white swelling, a pallid, waxy appearance of the skin, loss of strength and a gradual wasting away of the body.

S. S. S. combines both purifying and tonic properties, and is guaranteed entirely vegetable, making it the ideal remedy in all scrofulous infections. It purifies the deteriorated blood, makes it rich and strong and a complete and permanent cure is soon effected. S. S. S. improves the digestion and assimilation of food, restores the color to the skin and vigor to the weak and emaciated body.

Write us about your case and our physicians will cheerfully advise and help you in every possible way to regain your health. Book on blood and skin diseases free.

"We Aim to Please and Satisfy the People."

To the Citizens of Paducah:

We desire to call your attention to the following statement made by twenty-five of the prominent business men of Lexington, Ky. (The original is on file and can be seen at our office).

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 8th, 1902

To Whom it May Concern:

We, the undersigned citizens, business men of Lexington, Ky., are glad to state that the unanimous belief of the establishment of an independent telephone exchange in Lexington has been in every way beneficial to the business and social welfare of the citizens of Lexington. The independent company has been in operation nine months, during which time the use of the telephone has increased over 100 per cent, and the efficiency of the company of the telephone for our uses has increased. The independent company has the largest and best system of telephone lines in use in the city of Lexington. The independent company has a new line in Lexington and proposes to have TWO THOUSAND ANOTHERS in the next sixty days. The independent company has its own switchboard, and increased its efficiency in every way possible, upon the establishment of the independent company. The independent company put in a Central Ringer Multiple Switchboard, with long distance instrument, which was a revelation to all those who had been told to use the old system furnished by the Bell Company before the independent company started. We do not believe that there is a citizen of Lexington who would not most heartily endorse all that we have stated here, for one who would agree under any circumstances to have the independent company a proposition.

MORE ABOUT GENERAL FORREST'S RAID

A veteran of Clinton, Ky., writes as follows of Forrest's raid on Paducah thirty-eight years ago:

"Having noticed an article or two in The Sun recently in regard to the Forrest raid into Paducah, it strikes me as strange that there are so few people there who seem to remember anything accurate of it. The first raid occurred on the 23rd of March, 1864, being Good Friday. The attack was made on the fort between 2 and 3 o'clock p.m. It is folly for any one to say there was no attack on the fort; if not, how do they account for fourteen men killed, to say nothing of the wounded? Only one of these was killed outside the fort. His name was Phipps, and he was killed by a stab wound near where the railroad now crosses Clay street. The other Federal soldiers were nearly all killed from a brick house that was burned during the night following the fight. It stood on the southeast corner of Fourth and Madison. There was also one little girl killed, a Miss Bleek. She was killed just above the Langstaff sawmill, near the river, by a shot from a gunboat. Another citizen, Wm. Berry, was killed on the north side of Trimble street, at the corner of Fifth. He was the nearest person killed to the fort. Next to him was Colonel A. P. Thompson, who was killed by a cannon ball just opposite the alley between Fifth and Sixth street, on Trimble. He fell about half way between the center of the street and the gutter, on the south side. He was cut entirely in two. Several other Confederates were killed between there and where the old plow factory stood. Six of them were buried in one grave on the north side of the street, on about the second lot east of Sixth street. Beside the twelve or fifteen Confederates killed within range of the fort, one was killed on the east side of market square, another was killed while entering a telegraph pole on south side of Broadway, between Second street and Maiden alley. He was shot from the alley with a gun that belonged to the writer of this article, but not by the writer. As to the artillery the Confederates had, I can't say, and although Mr. J. V. Grief was in the Confederate army at the time, and likely in this fight, I think it probable he is mistaken as to the size of the guns they had, for they left a caisson (broken down) on the field northwest of Seventh street depot, with twelve-pound ammunition in it. As to Mr. Bleek's statement that the women were so badly scared on this occasion, it is my recollection, and my memory is fairly good, that the men were the worst scared lot I ever saw."

PAINFULLY HURT.

A CAR REPAIRER STRUCK IN THE FACE BY A HYDRAULIC JACK LEVER.

Mr. R. J. Stockman, a car repairer in Fercman Wheeler's gang, met with a serious accident this morning while at work at the jacking track. He was jacking up a car with a hydraulic jack, when the lever slipped and caught him in the face. His mouth was badly cut and bruised and a tooth knocked out and several others loosened up. He was sent to the hospital, where his injuries were dressed, and then returned to his home on Goodland avenue. The injuries, while painful, are not serious, and he will probably return to work tomorrow. His many friends will regret to learn of the accident.

Y. M. C. A. LIBRARY.

VALUABLE ADDITIONS TO BE MADE TO IT.

Secretary Escott of the local Y. M. C. A. will this week order a set of books for the library which will make a valuable addition to that department of the association.

The books will number 7, and will cost $18. They are illustrated in colors, and treat of animals and plants, being very instructive, as well as interesting to the reader. There are no books of this kind at present in the library, and they have been needed for some time.

Secretary Escott has already added two of the books treating of the new additions to the United States, China and the Philippines, and they are read as much as any books in the library.

Beginning with Tuesday the association athletes will organize the business men's class in athletics again and the regular meeting will be held on Tuesday and Thursday nights, and the young men's class meet nights have been changed to Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, for convenience to the business men.

J. C. GILBERT.

OLD CUSTOMS.

EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA WASHES THE FEET OF TWELVE MEN IN PRESENCE OF THE NOBILITY.

Vienna, March 28.—Emperor Francis Joseph yesterday (Munday Thorsday) performed at the Hesburg the traditional ceremony of washing the feet of twelve aged men. The nobility and the diplomatic corps, including the United States Minister Robert S. McCormick, Chandler Hale, the secretary of the United States legation; Captain Floyd Harris, military attaché, and Mrs. Harris witnessed the ceremony, after which His Majesty hung bags of money on the necks of the participants, whose aggregate age was 1,070 years. The old men were ancient Dutch costumes. The ages of twelve women recipients of the imperial munificent gifts aggregated 1,182.

TWO RIGHTS OF WAY.

BUT THERE WILL BE A PROTEST AGAINST ONE OF THEM, IT SEEMS.

A protest, it is understood, will be made to the city council by the local projectors of a railroad to Cairo against the council granting the Illinois Central right of way down Ninth street, as it has already granted the former road right of way over that thoroughfare.

It is not known what position the council will take in the matter, but it is claimed by some that a city cannot keep a trunk line out, and therefore cannot prevent the Illinois Central coming in over that street. A city may prevent the construction of side-tracks and belt lines, it is alleged, but cannot keep out a trunk line. It is possible that a lively fight will ensue over the two rights of way. The Illinois Central claims that both tracks can easily go down the same street, in case two roads are built.

APPELLATE CONVENTION.

THE COMMITTEE HAS BEEN CALLED TO MEET HERE APRIL 15.

The committee of the appellate district is called by Chairman Mott Ayres to meet at Paducah on April 15 to name the manner and time to nominate a Democratic candidate for judge of the court of appeals from this district.

A SEVERE COLD FOR THREE MONTHS.

The following letter from A. J. Nusbaum of Batesville, Ind., tells its own story. "I suffered for three months with a severe cold. A druggist prepared me some medicine, and a physician prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar, and eight doses cured me." Refuse substitutes.

J. C. GILBERT.

THE COAL WAS LOADED.

Eulane, Ky., March 28.—Charles W. Bauer, a druggist, put a lump of coal in the stove at his store, when an explosion followed, blowing off the top of the stove and doing damage to stock to the amount of $200. Fortunately those who happened to be in the room escaped without a scratch. The cause of the explosion is not known.

DANGERS OF PNEUMONIA.

A cold at this time if neglected is liable to cause pneumonia, which is often fatal, and even when the patient has recovered the lungs are weakened, making them peculiarly susceptible to the development of consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar will stop the cough, heal and strengthen the lungs and prevent pneumonia.

J. C. GILBERT.

SALE OF NEWSPAPER.

Bowling Green, Ky., March 28.—The News has been sold to Morton B. Gaines of Jackson, Tenn., son of John B. Gaines. Euclid C. Cooksey, proprietor of the News, will go elsewhere.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR.

Cures coughs and colds. Cures bronchitis and asthma. Cures croup and whooping cough. Cures hoarseness and bronchial troubles. Cures pneumonia and influenza. J. C. GILBERT.

SENATOR HANNA'S GOOD WORK.

New York, March 28.—On assurance from Senator M. A. Hanna the representatives of Pennsylvania miners have pledged themselves to withdraw the threat of a strike April 1st.

DAILY THOUGHT.

"If one is today more patient, more serene, more loving, more sympathetic than he was yesterday, he is truly advancing and his life is successful."

AN INVESTIGATION FAVORED.

Apropos recent insinuations of the success of improper influences in the last legislature of Kentucky, the Lexington Herald, a Democratic paper, demands more explicit charges and an investigation. It says that statements have appeared in quite a number of the country papers that reflected upon unnamed members of the legislature and intimated of the success of unnamed but described lobbyists. It has been said that the owner and editor of a well known Democratic paper and perhaps two equally well known officials were in some sort of partnership in schemes and plans to influence legislation; and were openly there to be employed to aid in the passage or in the defeat of measures pending before the legislature. We know nothing personally concerning the doings at Frankfort; and we are always re-lentant to believe such reports. But when grave accusations are made by respectable editors as of their knowledge, the charge assumes a graver importance. In a recent number of the Glasgow Times appears the following:

"Not for many years have the lobbyists assembled in so formidable numbers, or their labors borne such fruits, as through the sessions of the Kentucky legislature just closed. During the two preceding legislatures
the third house kept well under cover,
but in the present general assembly it threw off all concealment and defied
even the small restraint of decency.
Lobbying was an open business, and the lobbyist boldly proclaimed his profession."

"The editor of the Times is Jas. B.
Richardson, a member of the legislature of some years ago; and was then elected one of the prison commissioners,
and was re-elected by this legislature. His duties as representative and as commissioner have required him to be in Frankfort at the sessions of the legislature for the past six years;
and he knows whereof he speaks.
His statements, therefore, are both a charge and the testimony to support the charge.

"Who were these lobbyists, and what were the 'fruits' which were born of their labors? Can not this editor do the state service by frankly and courageously making public the names of these brazen lobbyists, and also publishing what he means by the charge that their labors bore 'fruits'?"
What measures did they succeed in having passed? What measures did they kill?

"This is not political or party question. This is far above mere partisan politics, or personal self-seeking. It is due to the honest and incorruptible
members that the guilty be exposed.
"Dead flies maketh the apothecaries ointment to stink"—who were these dead flies?

"If there be any admixture of politics in this matter, it is that it is due to the Democratic party that the names of the corrupt be made known and the reputation of the majority be not spotted or the party be held responsible.

"A prejudiced, bigoted, violent,
partisan, blind legislature has been known in the history of our state. But an openly corrupt legislature is not inable deeds have been done. But not through coarse and vulgar bargains have our legislatures disgraced the state and themselves. For the honor of Kentucky, for the good name of the Democratic party those who have knowledge of corrupt transactions ought to publish the names of the corrupt members and equally corrupt lobbyists."

LET'S SETTLE IT NOW.

There has been some little talk about the term of office of the mayor expiring in two years, instead of four.
Thus far one statement is about as good as another, and no matter which side is right in its contentions, the final settlement will have to be in the courts and at a great expense to some one, and annoyance to the public, unless a settlement is made before it can go to a legal test. The question whether officers elected under the third class charter can serve out the terms under the second class charter when to so serve may conflict with the state statutes, is a matter that should be settled at once. Another mooted question is whether or not the present officers can hold over under the second class charter at all.
It is hoped that no official will have to defend a damage suit for performing duties unauthorized by law. If all officials would relegate to the background for a time all ideas of personal rights and privileges and allow those of the public to be considered, the questions might be definitely settled
now without subsequent complications.
The public does not desire to be hoodwinked by depending on officials who think of little else than emoluments and salaries. It ought to be determined now, and the officers
ought to want it determined now,
just how far the law will sustain them in their present positions, and whether or not they are holding office legally, and if so just how long they can continue to hold office legally.

The citizens who favor and work for the advancement of Paducah are doubtless well pleased with the first four aldermanic appointments of Mayor D. A. Yelser, and trust that the next four will be equally as gratifying. The new style Democrats may wince a little when they think them over, but those citizens who have the welfare of Paducah and the expansion and increase of her institutions and industries at heart, will heartily applaud. On board there is a manufacturer and a wholesale merchant, a gentleman who has been in the employ of a large corporation for twenty years or longer and is said to own stock in it, and at least three are large investors in corporations. Two are directors in banks and three own bank stock, and will agree that such men cannot go astray in matters of public policy. They are substantial business men who will hesitate before they disturb our many public utilities or do the "gong" act against our struggling corporations. Even if two or more of them were Democrats who voted for McKinley, they voted for one of the best and greatest presidents we ever had, and are to be commended for being Democrats of above the average judgment and intelligence. As The Sun stated, the usual Democratic follies will find small place with such able men, and even if Mayor Yelser attempts to even things up by his next four appointments to satisfy his party, he will be satisfied.

Mr. J. W. Wallace, the assistant general manager of the I. C. road, and his wife will arrive in the city this afternoon at 3:45 from St. Louis to visit their son, Superintendent of the U. W.
Wallace, who is ill in the local I. C. hospital.

Chief Engineer Marahan of the I. C. left last night at 6 P.M. for the South,
after a several days' business trip in Paducah. He left in his special car and after a tour of the southern line
will return to Chicago.

While the year 1901 broke all records
in the matter of railway construction since 1890, it is very probable that the present year will even exceed in number of miles the total railroad construction of the year recently closed.

From January 1 to December 31, 1901, there were 5,222.10 miles of track laid by 362 lines, and while it is out of the question to sort over the projected lines and say which will be built and which will not, a careful compilation of the plans of the various railways, based upon official reports, shows that there are 7,084 miles of railway under construction or under contract. In addition there are 3,790 miles of lines projected for which there are excellent reasons for believing that the greater part will be built during the present year.

It is impossible to say that the lines
under contract and under construction
will be completed during the year, just as it is impossible to say that the 3,790 miles of proposed roads, which seem to be practically sure of construction, will materialize, but with these figures based upon official reports and conservative examination, it appears that the year may result in a heavier railroad construction than the past year, and may even exceed the year 1888, when 7,100 miles were built.

Some of the contracts that are outstanding will scarcely be completed during the year, as the mileage in some cases is so large that a longer period will be required. Steel rails are difficult to secure, and this fact will have its influence toward cutting down the new mileage for the year.

Something New in Mechanics.
Great is the humor of woman—when she doesn't mean it. Great is the nerve of woman—when she doesn't need it.
And great are the nerves of woman—
when it so pleases her. This combination is blamable for the following: A very pretty girl sat in a Long Island
railroad train en route for Manhattan Beach. Suddenly the whistle blew. It is perhaps not necessary to say that a Long Island railroad whistle is more efficacious than otherwise. It is tuned to the key of W and is operated with a great diapason, giving out a different brand of yelping shriek than anything known to nature. To repeat, the whistle whistled. "Oooow!" cried the pretty girl; "Isn't that awful? I should think the railroad company would have those things oiled. It is an outrage."
Her companion had often heard of wetting whistles, but never before of oiling them. Think it over.—Brooklyn Times.

it is authored by the promises of its manager
it is mounted in the same ornate that like nature. The cast includes some of the best farceurs in the profession.

Captain's Way in Which She Started Her Married Life.

"Yes," said a young man recently, "I saw one bride this fall start her married life all wrong, and if her conduct was no great a shock to her husband's ideas of womanly feeling as it was to mine I feel sorry for him. She was going to have a church wedding, a bridal pageant of beauty and elegance, and as a small accessory an awning was to be erected from the curb to the church entrance. It chanced that immediately following this wedding the son of a modest tradesman in the vicinity was to lead his bride to the same church. Hearing of it, the fashionable girl called on this young man and suggested that, as he and his bride were to have the use of her awning, it might be as well for him to share the expense of it. This he declined to do, on the ground that his wedding was of so unostentatious a nature as to need no awning, and it certainly had not occurred to him to order one. After some argument, in which neither side yielded, the party separated with the sweet girl bride-to-be intimating that if he did not pay in part for the awning he should not profit by it. The wedding day dawned with crowded church, fragrant flowers, glistening candles, and all the solemn yet joyful accompaniments of the sacrament of marriage. The fashionable wedding was duly solemnized, and as the tearful bride descended the steps of the sanctuary the modest equipage of the tradesman's son drew up before the edifice. The white-gowned bride, leaving behind her all the sunny memories of maidenhood, standing on the happy threshold of married life, stepped quickly to her carriage, and, then turning, with her own hand gave the signal to waiting workmen to remove the awning. The second bride and groom advanced to the church to the dirge of a rippling asunder of canaries—not half as discordant, however, as the jangling discords that rang through the hearts of the spectators at such an exhibition of evil passion at such a time."—Baltimore Sun.

A WALL STREET CURIOSITY.

Two Rich Landowners Curiously Divide Up Valuable Lots.

When joint owners of real estate wish to deline in division of their holdings the property usually is sold, each owner taking an equal share of the proceeds. In one case on Wall street a let in the lot, and used much after the man's wife and two boys would "whack up" a pipe or a cent's worth of candy.

No. 56 Wall street adjoins the Central Trust Company building, is owned by George F. Tracy, Wetmore, and 60 Wall street by Mrs. Edith C. Iselin. The building is between these two, No. 58, is the property of Mr. Wetmore and Mrs. Iselin jointly.

Some time ago Mr. Wetmore decided that his building might yield better returns if it were overhauled and a more attractive front put in. It also occurred to him how much better his remodeled structure would look with a frontage of thirty-seven feet instead of twenty-five. He owned a half interest in the adjoining lot, and why should he not have it? Mrs. Iselin offered no objection, and passers-by on Wall street recently have been somewhat mystified by the building of a substantial brick wall along what seemed to be the center of a lot.

The new wall when completed will be the easternly side of Mr. Wetmore's new building. Mrs. Iselin now has a vacant lot about twelve feet wide on her hands—a pretty valuable piece of ground to her idle in such a location, says the New York Times, but hardly available for any purpose unless she shall decide to remodel her building and take in the half-lot just as Mr. Wetmore is doing.

SAVING THE FORESTS.

Every Farmer Should Take Care of His Own Little Wood Lot.

At a farmers' institute last winter one of the most ardent speakers in favor of a bill before the Indiana legislature for the preservation of the forests was a farmer who was found later in the year hard at work in his wood lot cutting down trees for firewood. This man was not a fraud by any means, but he failed to see the slightest inconsistency in his action, and yet it seems plain that the only way to preserve the forests is for every farmer to take good care of his own little forest. If he have one, and if he has not, then he should make haste and start the trees. It is all very well to talk about the preservation of the few remaining great forests in the country, and every effort should be made to take care of them, but they will be of little value compared to the five, ten and twenty acre wood lots, if such a one could be found on every farm in the country. If you have a wood lot, take care of it. Keep stock and fire out of it; scatter a few seeds of forest trees over the ground every few years, and do everything possible to preserve your small forest. If there is no wood lot on your farm, set out the trees or sow the seeds next spring on that twenty-acre worn out pasture.—Indianapolis News.

THINKING ABOUT OTHERS.

It is a foolish habit and wastes valuable time.

Do not waste what is left of life in regarding other men, except when bent upon some unselfish gain. Why miss opportunities for action by thus persistently regarding what so-and-so is doing and why, what he is saying or thinking or planning, or anything else that dazes and distracts you from allegiance to your Inner Self? In the sequence of your regards, shun wayward, random thoughts, and, above all, meddling and ill-nature; limit yourself habitually to such regards that if suddenly asked, "What is in your thoughts now?" you could tell at once the candid and unswerving truth—a direct, plain proof that all your thoughts were simple and in charity, such as befit a social being, who eschews voluptuous or even self-indulgent fancies, or jealousy of any kind, or malice and suspicion, or any other mood which you would blush to own. A man so minded and committed finally to the pursuit of virtue, is indeed priest and minister of gods, true to that inward and implanted power, which keeps a man unsold by pleasure, invulnerable by pain, free from all touch of arrogance, innocent of all baseness, a combatant in the greatest of all combats, which is the mastery of passion, steeped in justice to the core, and with his whole heart welcoming all that befalls him as his portion; seldom, and only in view of some large, unselfish gain, does he regard what other conduct is his sole concern, and he realizes without fail the web of his own destiny.—Marcus Aurelius.

The White House Livery.

A cockade of red, white and blue is a noticeable feature of the new White House livery, although the national colors are in evidence throughout the costume in which the president's coachman and footmen appeared a few weeks ago. The coats and the trousers are of heavy dark blue vicuna, the heat quality of goods obtainable being used. The outer seams of the trousers are bound with a white cord. The long padded driving coat, which terminates midway between knee and ankle, is of "military" cut and has a snug waist and broad square shoulders. The skirt has a decided flare. Down the front from the tight fitting, narrow collar to the waist line run parallel lines of silver buttons. Underneath the coat is worn a long-sleeved tunic of the same material as the other garments, and fastened in front by a single row of silver buttons. Mrs. Roosevelt selected the material and the pattern for the livery.

SUN'S DAILY STORY

MATILDA'S MUNITY.

BY SARA LINDSAY COLEMAN.
(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Polly Fox, who six months before had gladly left the village's ever increasing sisterhood of spinsters to become the wife of the reverend Mr. Fox and mother to the little and big Foxes, said to her husband, as Matilda, tall and trim, swung down the village street at a pace that comes from strength:

"It's plum scan'lous—she's got on a short skirt an' her hair down her back, it's her birtday an' she ain't done a tick of work to day. Jes' left it all for her man ar' Mary. See she'd been slavin' ten year, a nee she come home from college, un' she intended havin' a day off. They done a bad thing for her when they sent her to college. She got quare notions an' has flouted every man in the village. I don't reckon she'll flout any more."

Matilda left the village behind her and plunged into a rear wood. She flung herself full length on the ground and lay there motionless. Life had brought her nothing of what she had dreamed.

There was a flash of moving color and a burst of song in the silent wood; below, the river roared and tumbled in its eager onward rush. June lay on the wide, wonderful mountains—June, with its glory of color, its abundant young life; and the June time which lives in the souls of unused women was in Matilda. The June time! It revolted at life and death in a country village; it scoured the spinsters with their sharp tongues, their sagging shoulders and sagging hips, their dull-limbed lives of toil.

Suddenly Matilda got to her feet and began heaving up the earth into a mound; she worked madly and when she to set back the heavy bush of hair that had slipped over her shoulder she laughed—a reck'ly laugh.

"It's almos' amusing," she said.
"If I were in the secret I am sure I would agree with you." The wolen was not far off that had spoken the words.

Matilda turned with the air of an insulted prima. The short skirt, the braided hair accentuated the youthful look.

"This," she said, haughtily, "is a private wool."

"And I am on a fence," was the only reply, "and beyond is the king's highway."

Matilda gave the stranger a grave looking over but he stood unflinchingly.

"The ceremony was about completed," she spoke more graciously, "the song com'n next." She threw back her head and sang in a clear, fresh voice, "How tedious and tasteless the hours." At the end of the first line she stopped and laughed.

"You are putting away the dolls and playthings of life?" the man asked.

"I found that the dolls were sawdust and put them away twenty-five years ago." This in a disdainful tone.

"What an ancient you are," said the man.

"Yes," bumbly.

The man got down from the fence and came over to Matilda.

"What did you bury there?" he asked, inditing the mound.

"My youth," she spoke defiantly.

"Ye gods!" the man burst into laughter.

Matilda came a little nearer.

"You are a southerner and a gentleman," she said. "I know from your voice and your eyes. I'm celebrating. It's my birtday. At first I wept. You should have seen the glimmer that followed me down the street. I know how their tongues wagged when they saw my hair down my back; they all know that I am thirty."

"Well," said the man, "what if you are? I've known women of thirty who were much niver than white-muslined, blue-ribboned, giggling girls."

"Out there," with a comprehensive

“We have had to-day.”
swept away into the forest's depths.
Their laughter was the spontaneous laughter of two who find content in each other's presence; their silences held no estrangement.

A purple mist settled on the blue mountains that belted the distance; from some near hill, a milkmaid's call floated. The knolls above them were massed in bloom. A deep sweet happiness filled the woman's soul. It was but just that life out of its fullness should have given her this one last day of youth.

The boat turned homeward. The sun, a ball of fire, was dropping behind a far mountain peak. It was dragging her off to a dream country from which she would wake in a shiver. Alan, that from dreams the dreamers awoke. But the boat crept on—in the perfumed gloom the laurel crowned hills were white. It was still a dream. A school girl dream come true. A castle built on lonely evenings when the wind had shivered and the thoughts were long, long thoughts—a castle turned to gleaming marble.

The boat touched the landing. For an instant the man felt the pressure of her light weight; then she stood beside him on the river bank.

"Good-by," said Matilda. She held out her hand; her eyes had a strange sweetness—the sweetness of a joy relinquished at birth, laid reverently away with her one day of youth.

"Good-by," she faltered, "it grows late."

"Good-by?" the man said, puzzled.

Then he laughed down into her eyes, "Good-by until tomorrow."

"We have had to-day," said Matilda.

"And will have to-morrow." The man's boat shot out into the stream.

Matilda climbed the hill that led to the village—the dreary village. And in the west where the day was fast dying the star that comes first to the waiting sky glowed.

Reprise That Hurl.

A correspondent at Ithaca, N. Y., sends the Record the following street car incident: One of the last sharp November days a boy entered the car leaving the door open, much to the discomfort of an old gentleman who sat next. As the wind chilled his marrow his temper rose. Leaning across his seat and taking the kid by the ear he said: "Were you brought up in a barn? Why don't you shut the door?"

The boy said nothing, but closed the door, coming back to his seat in tears.

This sight moved the old man to relenting pity. "There, there," he said, "little man, I didn't really mean you were brought up in a barn." "That's just it," retorted the kid. "I was

ANOTHER POSTPONMENT.

The Bond Case Will Go over for Another Term of Court.

The Suit for Interest, However, will be Tried, if it Probable.

It will doubtless be some time before the bond suits that have been pending in the federal court here against the city of Paducah for the past three years go to trial. There are two suits, one to collect the interest due on the coupons of the over-the-river bonds, amounting to several thousand dollars, and the suit of the bond brokers, Roberts and Co. of New York, against the city of Paducah for $10,000 for breach of contract.

It was about three years ago that the council decided to refund about $66,000 bonds of the Paducah and St. Louis railroad, and Roberts and Co. of New York agreed to buy the refunding bonds at a lower rate of interest than the city was then paying. All arrangements were made, but the council suddenly decided that it didn't want to refund the bonds, and claimed that they were illegal, and could not be refunded, which position was taken at the advice of the city attorney.

The bonds were not refunded, and when the next payment of interest became due, the council found that it could not pay the interest if the bonds were illegal, and as it had decided the bonds were illegal, the city defanted on the interest.

Roberts and Co., who had already contracted to sell the bonds at a profit of $10,000, soon brought suit for that amount, and a year or more ago the holders of a number of the bonds in St. Louis brought suit against the city to collect the defanted interest, which now amounts to twelve or sixteen thousand dollars. The case has been continued from time to time, with the costs piling up, and it was given out today that an agreement has been made to again continue the Roberts suit when federal court convenes here next month.

This is because the question of the validity of the bonds is involved in both suits, and an effort is to be made to try the suits to collect the interest, and when it is decided the other will be tried.
